Winnipeg Free Press, November 10: L. A. Hamilton, land commissioner of the C. P. R. has received some samples of grain that are very interesting in view of the fact that they came from a region that has always been considered to be outside the agricultural belt of the Northwest. They were sent from Lac la Pêche, three hundred and fifty miles north of Calgary. The samples consist of wheat, oats and barley and were grown on the farms of C. Quintal, L. Paul and the Rouleau Mission. The wheat is red type and is plump, bright and hard, and superior in all respects to any sample seen in Manitoba this season. The barley and oats are also of very high grade. The grain does not show the least signs of having been affected by frost. These samples show that the fall is not yet known of the extent of the agricultural area of the great Northwest.

B. S. Hammond of Rolette county, No. 10 Dakota arrived from Calgary this week. He got on the look-out for a location, has, in common with most of the settlers of North Dakota, become disgusted at the state of agricultural prospects there, which he considers as being of a very dismal nature. Mr. Hammond states that he has seen no country anywhere that can compare with the Edmonton district for growth of grain and roots or as a cattle raising country. He visited the Sturgeon settlement this week and is going to Stony Plain today, but he says that he has already made up his mind that this is the country for him. When Mr. McClay who visited this district and located last summer returned and told the people of North Dakota what Mr. Hammond states was only the plain truth about this place they would hardly believe him and thought that he was an agent of the C. P. Ry. and that what he told them was merely exaggeration. Mr. Hammond will return here, in the spring with several others.

READING ROOM.

We do not enjoy the privilege and benefit of a reading room at present, but there are many and various reasons why we ought to have one, notwithstanding that some may say it is not needed. It is essential and needful because reading is and ought to be one of the first and greatest factors of a thoughtful and useful life, and a man cannot be very useful and deeply thoughtful without it. All distinguished men have been given to the habit of constant reading, and the slightest distinction and importance are impossible without it. "Reading," says Bacon "makes a full man; conversation, a ready man; writing, an exact man." Every man who to replicate perfect and opportune, must be a constant reader. But if a man does not read, he can neither write nor speak. Genius is nowhere and cannot supply a deficiency in this respect. Therefore for a full and harmonious development of mental powers and resources a man must read. Generally speaking the course should be broad and complete, but above all, if he has not time or inclination for books of a scientific and speculative character, he should read the literature of the day in the best and latest periodicals and magazines. His finger should be on the pulse of the times and signs. All should know and understand the action and influence of the age in which he lives. He should know the discoveries of science, the inventions of art and the progress of the centuries. At present this is the privilege and right of a few who can purchase all the books and magazines requisite and who have their minds sharpened and always on the qui vive, but there are others who cannot purchase all the papers and periodicals desirable, nor have they the ability and creative power of the celebrated French author who, when launched at the account of the poverty of his library said "When I want a book I make it," and a reading room would meet the conditions and requirements of the case and bring it within the reach of all. Others may say that all necessary reading matter and materials can be had at the public houses. It is true that some of the popular periodicals and magazines are regularly received by the proprietors of the hotels and saloons. This is highly commendable and proper. They should do so for the accommodation and entertainment of their guests. They should find amusement and instruction and moreover read them ad libitum, but young men of the town could not and would not, night after night, week after week, make the saloon a resort for reading and studying the events of the times and the inventions of the age, without thought of remuneration and compensation to the proprietors of place and paper. Who would thumb and use the various magazines and papers by the light and fire of another man's lamp, not only thought of but paying for the same? But how can such compensation be made? One cannot say "here is so much for use of paper and light, fire and seat," but this can be and is said "Come boys this is my treat," and thus this fosters and encourages the treating and drinking system. Besides it must be acknowledged by all that the moral atmosphere is not always of the most fragrant and delicate character in saloons, and we ought to devise some plan to avoid making these public retreats for news and information. This can be done by the establishment and equipment of a public and common-sense reading room where the social influence will be of the right kind. When everything is done decently and in order there will be a wholesome and pure spirit of sociability and its value will be incalculable and incomparable from that standpoint. Surely there are citizens who believe in the reality and earnestness of life to a sufficient extent to agitate and re-agitate this matter and when the iron is hot, to strike. Let action have the wings of meditation and affection. A public meeting could be called to meet at any convenient centre, and then the details of the scheme could be heard and propounded. Undoubtedly a suitable room could be procured and furnished at a very reasonable and moderate amount, and a caretaker of same provided who should spend an hour or more or less every evening throughout the week or tri-weekly as the committee of management decide.

Let a subscription be taken up for defraying the expenses of subscription of the papers and the payment of the caretaker. Some may still think the scheme impracticable, but surely if others find it feasible and practicable, we can. Anything that has been done can be done and there are many towns which have neither the size nor the importance of ours yet have a well kept and well furnished reading room. Let us be and not seem.

ASSEMBLY NOTES.

Wednesday, November 20th:

Thorburn's amendment to the agricultural societies ordinance passed second reading and the committee of the whole. Richardson gave notice that he would move a resolution confirming the resolution of last session to re-separate schools. On Richardson's motion for leave to introduce a bill respecting fences, a long debate took place. Reaman advised that the bill be introduced through the committee as he also had amendments on that subject. Richardson refused and said he would not get down on his knees to any committee to introduce the bill, but would introduce what bills he pleased, and dared any member representing farmers to vote against the bill respecting fences. Leave refused. Yeas—Brett, Richardson, Secord, Hoy and Jolly, 5. Nays—Thorburn, Neff, Sutherland, Tweed, Cayley, Davidson, Haultain, Oliver, Turfitt, Clinkskill, Ross and Mitchell, 12. Brett moved for leave to introduce a brand ordinance. Betts asserted the necessity to Prince Albert district of the amendments proposed. There would be great injury to the district if not passed. Plaxton, Prince Albert, said he proposed the amendments to the brand ordinance in the interests of the district, but would not delay business by introducing them in the house; he would bring his amendments before the agricultural committee, and would be glad to forward his colleagues copies of the amendments, as well. To-day's proceedings proved that business was being delayed by the minority rather than by the majority. He could not further countenance such obstructive tactics. The debate continued on the lines of the previous debate. Brett repeated the defence given by Richardson and undertook to address the visitors in the house when Mr. Speaker was compelled to interfere. Leave refused. Yeas—Brett, Richardson, Betts, Reaman, Hoy, Jolly, 6. Nays—Plaxton, Thorburn, Neff, Sutherland, Tweed, Cayley, Linham, Davidson, Haultain, Oliver, Turfitt, Clinkskill, Ross and Mitchell, 14. Neff introduced an ordinance to establish farmers' institutes.

Friday, November 21st:

Brett got a motion appointing the members of the advisory board, on the committee before the house, after having been ruled out of order the third time, and the house permitting him to amend his motion, gained the object of having it rejected by 13 to 7, but not before it was shown that by placing two or more members of the advisory board on all committees but one, he was assuming to control the house, which could not be permitted of any minority.

An arrangement to be completed by the minister of agriculture for a special colonist bonus or rate to immigrant settlers on land in Manitoba, the Northwest Territories and British Columbia, with the object of stimulating settlement on land on satisfactory proof of this fact. For the head of a family it will be $15, and for each member of the family at and over the age of twelve years, $7.50, with an additional bonus of $5 to any member of the family who subsequently takes up a homestead within six months after their arrival in Canada. These bonuses will considerably reduce the cost of moving from the United Kingdom or the continent of Europe to Canada, and it is confidently believed will accelerate the stream of immigrant settlers on land, and being payable only after settlement of the land, it is not at all likely to create any opposition on the part of the working men.

REPLY TO THE SPEECH.

The following paragraph taken from the reply to the speech of His honor the Lieutenant governor shows the stand taken by the majority of the assembly on the school question:

It must be clear to your honor that this assembly can legislate on but few of the subjects upon which it is expressly authorized by Dominion order-in-council without the question of finance being involved. This is particularly the case in regard to schools.

If the funds upon which the successful working of this most important ordinance depends are entirely beyond our control, it would, in our opinion, be better to place the power to legislate regarding Northwest schools in the hands of those who do control the necessary funds, whether they may be your honor alone, or your honor with your advisors, or the parliament of Canada. This assembly must protest against its being placed in the position of being responsible to the people of the Northwest Territories for proper legislation regarding schools, and yet be deprived of the control of the funds whereby alone that legislation can be given effect—whereby alone the school system at present existing in the Northwest Territories can be maintained.

At the session of 1888, the assembly, believing that it possessed control of the grant in aid of schools, provided that a certain proportion of aid from that grant should be extended to them. On the strength of the inducement thus held out, many new districts were organized, taxation was levied and liabilities were incurred for the creation of school houses whose usefulness depended on the continuance of the proportion of the aid promised in the ordinance of the assembly. During the session of 1889 the promises of aid resumed without any intimation from your honor that it would not be made good, and a still further increase in the number of school districts took place. In the present year, after the annual taxation rate had been struck on the basis of the grant promised by the Northwest assembly, a circular, authorized by the government of the Northwest Territories, was received by the several school districts warning them of the proposed reduction to be made in the amount of their grant.

This house is compelled to inform your honor that if it is to understand that the control of the school funds rests with your honor and not with this assembly, as would appear from the circular referred to, it will be necessary for us to amend the present ordinance by striking out the provisions relating to aid to schools and thereby make known that with your honor rests the responsibility of the distribution of the said fund and the support of the school system of the Northwest Territories.

According to a Washington dispatch, merchants of the United States, particularly those of New England, who have hitherto practically controlled the trade of the West Indies by the States, are watching with interest the visit to the West Indies of minister or finance Foster. Some articles they now send to the Indies could not be supplied by Canada, but agricultural products, fish and lumber, which make up the bulk of the exports, this country can sell as cheaply as the States can.

The Liverpool Journal of Commerce states that the Duke of Westminster, one of the wealthiest men in England, has associated himself with Stanley in a company formed for the purpose of developing the resources of various regions in West Africa. The Duke is floating the company's stock and it is expected that the active operations will be commenced at an early date, probably under Stanley's personal supervision.

Archdeacon Farrar has inspected the shelters, refuges, etc., organized by General Booth of the Salvation Army, as a nucleus of the great enterprise of redeeming the English masses, and has been deeply impressed with the thoroughness and practicality of the scheme. He preached on the subject of Westminster Abbey to-day and gave his hearty support to the plan outlined by the general.

A despatch from Rome states that the Pope has been solicited through Cardinal Rampolla on behalf of the British government to prohibit Catholics in America from contributing to the funds of the Irish National League on the ground that the funds are used for unlawful and immoral purposes.

A new use is reported to have been discovered for English hogs—namely, for the curing of bacon. It is found that a sprinkling of hops in the brine when bacon and hams are put in pickle adds greatly to the flavor of both, and enables them to be kept for an indefinite period.
